HOUSES

At Step Up School, the house system is more than just a way to group students – it is a powerful tool for building unity, character, and a strong sense of identity. The school has four houses: Bhagirathi, Ravi, Kaveri, and Kalindi, each named after a sacred and historically significant river of India. These names carry deep meaning and offer a beautiful reflection of the values the school upholds.

The house system helps to create a spirit of camaraderie and healthy competition among students. Through various inter-house events such as sports, debates, cultural performances, and academic challenges, students learn the value of teamwork, discipline, and perseverance.

The houses encourage leadership, especially through roles like house captains and prefects, which help students build confidence, responsibility, and integrity. Moreover, the symbolic power of these river names serves as a constant reminder that, like rivers, students are on a journey – growing, learning, and making an impact wherever they go.
